The two-story living-dining room faces north to the primary view of Cape Cod Bay.

Clapboard siding, running trim, and corner boards are western red cedar. All exterior wood was finished with a clear stain to enhance the grain of the wood, allowing it to weather without turning gray.

CAPE COD, MASSACHUSETTS

Views & Natural Ventilation

*Architect: Hammer Architects
Photographer Eric Roth*

This 2000 square foot house is on a wooded bluff overlooking Cape Cod Bay and "was designed to harmonize with... the natural landscape of pine, bayberry and oak trees."
